

Facility Update

The demolition of the south part of the high school has begun in full force. After cleaning out all of the electrical, plumbing, and most of the interior of the old part of the high school, the contractor began demolition on Tuesday on the east side of the south classroom wing of the school. A few weeks ago, students, teachers, and equipment were moved from the old part of the school into the new areas. With the help of portable classroom buildings, we will be able to complete the construction on the south side while school is in session. The demolition on the south part of the school should be completed by the end of December. The contractor will then begin construction on the two new south classrooms wings beginning in January.

The faculty and staff at the high school have had a great attitude about the construction noise and mess created by the demolition. This part of the high school construction will be the most disruptive and complicated of the entire 4-year Bond Program for the district. I appreciate everyone's cooperation as we try to complete this phase and provide an outstanding educational facility for our students.

Below are pictures of the demolition on the east side of the high school.

Have a safe and enjoyable Thanksgiving!
